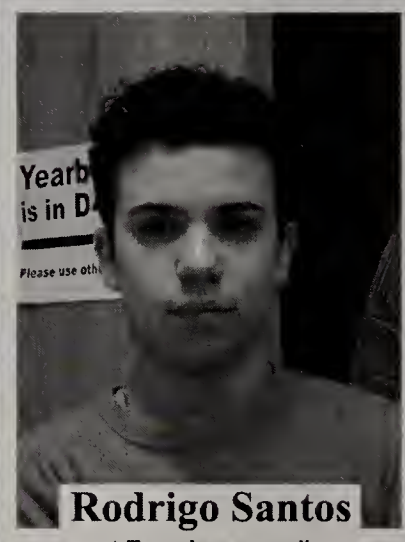
"Destiny is not a matter of chance, it is a matter of choice; it is not a thing to be waited for, it is a thing to be achieved."

Franzi Baur

"We all dream; we do not understand our dreams, yet we act as if nothing strange goes on in our sleep minds, strange at least by comparison with the logical, purposeful doings of our minds when we are awake."



Rodrigo Santos

A Tua palavra escondi
Guardada no meu coração
Pra eu não pecar contra Ti Senhor
A Tua palavra escondi
Minhas vestes no sangue lavei
E das Tuas águas bebi
Pra ser uma oferta agradável a Ti
Minha vida a Ti consagrei
Meus dans e talentos sãa pra te servir
Meus dons preciosos sãa Teus
Nãa veja razãa da minha sem Ti
Tu és meu Senhar e meu Deus
Assim como o foga refina o ouro
Vem Tua obra em mim completar
Até que o mundo possa ver
Tua glária em meu rosta brilhar

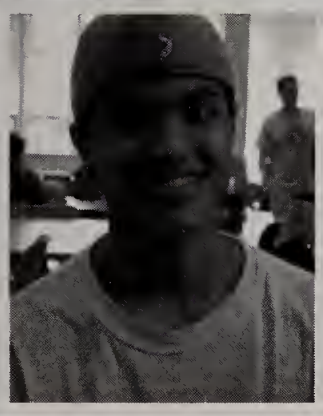
Fifteenth of August
The most terrible time of your life.
Coming to a big country
Where you don't know anybody.
Suddenly you see two lovely people
Who are coming near you
And you understand that
They are your first family.
And now you can take a deep breath
Now everything is perfect
Time to go to your new house
Time to meet new people
And my parents can't be anxious
Because everything will be all right

Kim Thi Ho

"To fly from, need not be to hate, mankind:
All are not fit with them to stir and toil,
Nor is it discontent to keep the mind
Deep in its fountain."



"Throw your dreams into space like a kite, and you do not know what they will bring back, a new life, a new friend, a new love, a new country."

The first teen concert of the school year was held last Friday at the Katharine Cornell Theatre. The Pawn Shop was the opening act, followed by Keep Thinking and Howl. The concert was made possible by a grant to the Island Council for Youth from the Martha's Vineyard Co-op Bank. Sam Decker, far left, and Brian Alexander, near left, helped keep the place jumping.

The High School View

The High School View is staffed and prepared entirely by students from the Martha's Vineyard Regional High School, and published on their behalf by The Martha's Vineyard Times, with the generous assistance of the sponsors whose names appear below.

Students Raise Thousands

By Julia Hughes

Terror rocked the world on September 11 with the destruction of three of our nation's most symbolic buildings and the death and injury of thousands of Americans. Along with the rest of the world, Vineyarders watched the news coverage with a feeling of helplessness and outrage.

Now, in an effort to assist with the effort in New York and Washington, D.C., many Island high school students held a fast.

"We wanted kids to feel like they were helping," said Andrea Vought, a senior who planned the fast along with Jane McGroarty, also a senior.

"What happened last Tuesday didn't just happen to New York, it happened to the country, and the country needs to be part of the solution," Andrea said.

They chose a fast for variety of reasons, but partially to help the students understand what thousands of people still trapped in the World Trade Center could be feeling — "Only a million times worse," said Andrea.

Senior Lila Fischer drank only water while she fasted.

"We all read in text books and hear from our grandparents about the level of patriotism that used to exist," said Jane. "I feel that we've pushed that to the back of the closet, and that now is a good time to bring it back, to really feel American." Jane said the fast is her way of honoring her uncle Ken Waldie, who was on the plane that crashed into the first Twin Tower.

The fast lasted from Tuesday night at 7 pm, and ended 24 hours later, with a pot luck in the regional high school cafeteria. The students raised over $8,000, taking donations from a number of local businesses.

Instead of spending the day complaining about being hungry, the approximately 50 students who participated turned the fast into a day of camaraderie, a day of hope.

Students React to National Tragedy

It's kind of a confusing subject. I guess a lot of terrible things have happened already, but the worst thing that could come of this would be more fighting and bombing. I'd like America to find a more mature way to retaliate.

-Mac Young, senior

Our generation has never experienced something like this. We grew up in an invincible nation. Maybe it is good to dispel that safety. It's still hard for me to actually believe it happened. The media coverage made it seem so unreal, almost like a movie because you saw the same sequence over and over again until it was barely shocking.

-Mariah MacGregor, senior

This is the kind of thing I've always known would never happen, so I still don't know what to think.

Right now I'm not afraid of terrorists so much as the kind of things Americans are doing to each other out of ignorance and paranoia.

-Sofi Thanhauser, senior

I was confused. But now I really realize that there are some really sick people out there that don't like our country.

It really scares me that people would go to these extents to destroy our way of life.

Crisis Stuns Regional

By Maxwell Butler

Few Americans will forget where they were when the news came in. Multiple airplanes hijacked; one smashing into the Pentagon; one going down near Pittsburgh, perhaps on its way to Camp David, and two completely obliterating the towers of the World Trade Center in an explosion of concrete, metal, and burning jet fuel that shook America's sense of security.

The terrorists had fulfilled part of their mission — they struck fear into the hearts of many. Even here on Martha's Vineyard, on our streets and in our schools where Islanders seemed to live in almost complete shelter from such tragedy, the horror of September hit hard.

Many high school students couldn't believe what they were seeing as the images unfolded over the televisions. "I was walking into [F period] chemistry," said senior Alex Greeley, "and saw it on the TV. The class was staring...with their jaws dropped. I was like, 'holy Christ.' I couldn't believe it. I was numb."

Junior Seb Keefe thought immediately of the worst-case consequence. "The first thing I thought was, 'we're going to war,' but once we learned that it was a terrorist group, I realized that there would be more to it."

"A teacher came in and told us to put on the news, and we watched both towers collapse," said junior John Stanwood. "I was amazed and surprised. I didn't really know what to think about what we were going to do about it." At the time, John said, he wasn't sure how something of this magnitude was going to be handled by our country.

"Devastation," said math teacher Bill McGrath of the nationwide tragedy. "I felt like we'd been violated." Mr. McGrath, who owns a house in Washington, D.C., had ties with the attacked cities in various ways. "I have three children in D.C., my house is in D.C; [I have] past coworkers who worked in the Pentagon, friends and prior associates that work in the World Trade Center."

Cassie Walton, a junior, remembers how unfathomable the situation seemed. "I was in the library, and I saw a bunch of people around the TV. I walked over and they said, 'a plane just crashed into the World Trade Center.' It didn't really hit me; even later, it was like, 'wow.' It is just so confusing."

Though as a nation, Americans are still picking up the pieces of this lost symbol of America, the country must consider what is to be done as punishment for those who committed this act.

Should the United States place the accusations on Afghanistan, the Taliban, and Osama bin Laden?

John Stanwood said, "I don't believe cruise missiles can find and kill one man. I think we should take ground troops in and make friends with the Northern Alliance, because they're against the Taliban. They have experience fighting in the territory."

Guidance counselor Mary MacDonald said the regional high school continues to keep its guidance offices open for students who need it.

Senior Rob Thayer, whose school-sponsored trip to Egypt was canceled, feels the terrorists have only unified the United States against them. "I think they want a war, and it's hard not to give it to them. I wish there were another way."

September 11, 2001: a student watches on television the collapse of one of the World Trade Center Towers as it happens.

"I think we should wait and gather allies and information, and then attack," said Seb Keee. "Attack ...the Taliban...because people in Afghanistan have had to be under the Taliban. It will show other terrorists groups that you can't do this and get away with it. If you get caught doing this, you're going to pay the price."

However, Principal Regan believes that war is not the only option. "For hundreds of years we've seen it that way. We have the intellect and communications ability to solve it more peacefully. The ordinary human being has tremendous power to communicate today."

Though there is nothing that will completely heal the sorrow felt by those directly affected by this event, some at the high school offered words to those caught up in the attack, and to students dealing with it in their own way.

"I think we need to turn to a higher power, whoever that is," said Mr. McGrath. "We're missing the big picture. If we're to lead the world as a country, then we need to react to the terrorism and to the tragedies that go on worldwide, including in Afghanistan, in Central America, in Africa. The starvation, the death, [we] can't ignore it if we want to be a world leader."

Alex, however, stands by his feeling that those who committed this act and the government who harbors them should bear the full weight of the consequences. Said Alex to the terrorists, "Get ready to eat it."

As a school and a nation, people are united against that which has befallen everyone. Americans share grief, sorrow, and shock with our fellow citizens.

What should be done? No one is certain right now.

It is important for citizens of the United States to take stock in how our policies and actions affect the rest of the world, and move to prevent a tragedy such as this from ever happening again.

The Road Not Taken

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

Then took the other, as just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black.
Oh, I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I--
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

2002

"The time has come," the Walrus said,
"To talk of many things:
Of shoes-and ships-and sealing-wax-
Of cabbages-and kings-
And why the sea is boiling hot-
And whether pigs have wings."

So you haven't got a drum, just beat your belly.
So I haven't got a horn — I'll play my nose.
So we haven't any cymbals —
We'll just slap our hands together,
And though there may be orchestras
That sound a little better
With their fancy shiny instruments
That cost an awful lot —
Hey, we're making music twice as good
By playing what we've got!

To Mom and Dad- You did ok! I didn't turn out that bad for a first try. Thanx for all of the many many things you've done for me over the years. Love ya!

To Jo- You have always been there for me even with the distance between us. I love you for that and for everything else you do!

To my Em-bear- Well you scared me for a while with your threats of running off and getting married, but you stuck around. You're my oldest friend and you've been through it all with me. U know me too well! I luv u!

To LD and Michelle-my-bell- Womans! What would I have done without you? Both of you have helped keep me sane! LD- you have had such an amazing effect on me! We have so many great memories together, never forget the good times! Mich- You have to be one of the most caring people I have ever met! And don't forget,

"i would walk five hundred miles...."

Seniel- You're crazy! I love it though, I've known you forever, and I'm glad we started hangin out again. Minne was fun! LT baby! Langua Mortaris!

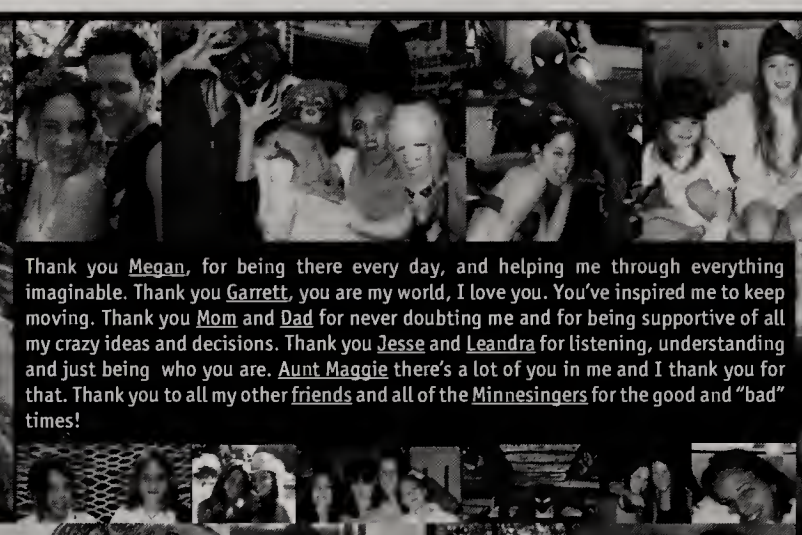
Meg(Egg)- You're such a fun person to be around! Keep in touch! love ya!

Suzanne- I love you so much....never forget it.

To the rest of my family- You've all done so much for me! Love U!

To the Minnesingers- This year has been so much fun! I'll miss all the fun and crazy times. Luv you all!

"Each friend represents a world in us, a world not possibly born until they arrive, and it is only by this meetin' that a new world is born."



Thank you Megan, for being there every day, and helping me through everything imaginable. Thank you Garrett, you are my world, I love you. You've inspired me to keep moving. Thank you Mom and Dad for never doubting me and for being supportive of all my crazy ideas and decisions. Thank you Jesse and Leandra for listening, understanding and just being who you are. Aunt Maggie there's a lot of you in me and I thank you for that. Thank you to all my other friends and all of the Minnesingers for the good and "bad" times!

In this special moment of life, think freely, practice patience, smile often. Savor special moments... Live God's message. Make new friends. Rediscover old ones. Tell those you love, that you do. Feel deeply. Forget trouble. Forgive an enemy. Hope. Grow. Be CRAZY. Count your blessings, observe miracles. Make them happen. Discard worry. Give. Give in. Trust enough to take. Pick some flowers. Share them. Keep a promise. Look for rainbows. Gaze at stars. See beauty everywhere... work hard. Be wise. Try to understand. Take time for people. Make time for yourself. Laugh. Spread joy. Take a chance. Reach out. Let someone in, try something new. Slow down. Listen to rain. Cry when you need to. Enjoy wonder. Comfort a friend. Make some mistakes, learn from them. Celebrate Life!

So many thanks to my family, you have loved & supported me through it all. Mom, you are the best in the world. You did what it took to give me what I needed; I love you for that.

To my girls: Cass, Leslie, Deirdre, Carolin, Janis, Suzy, Bess, Vanessa & Niki, you can always make me laugh, & were there when I cried. You are always in my heart, I love you, stay in touch.

To Ray, the love of my life: for 3 years you have been my partner and my friend. You make me happier than you can imagine & I'm so glad God put you in my life. We have been through enough to last us a lifetime, yet it has made us stronger. I could never survive without your love. Te amo con todo mi corazon.

Love is not simply gazing into each others eyes, but gazing together in the same direction.

Another walk. Midnight twenty-four and Marshall and his friends are searching for something. An untouched pinapple, an english accent, and hopes of a dounut run accompany this purposeless night. A dark path of rocks, trees, and a boogie man is to be conquered. The mind plays tricks, the shady enemy of the woods takes form in mind. A man of evil. So they talk. They talk about nothing important. They talk of nothing at all. The car stalled, the family fought, the smile and hug that saved the day. The path has broken and the beach is as never seen before but seen a hundred times. The stars, the phosphoresence.They jump into the water to rebel. They move together. They got bored. One talks to the ocean. Two run to the rock and get lost in the wistless winds. Two fall asleep. One watches, listens, remembers, forgets.

Não serei grato se não agradecer á Deus em primeiro lugar. Por ter me concedido ao mundo, em todos os momentos estando comigo mesmo quando eu não tinha consciência disso ou não o acreditava. Obrigado, Pai dos Pais, Celestial Deus. Sem o Senhor eu nada seria. Obrigado, pela minha familia, parentes, amigos, enfim, pessoas que Tu tens colocado em minha vida e por ter nos colocado uns nas vidas dos outros.

"Life isn't about keeping score. Life is about who you love and who you hurt. It's about how you feel about yourself. It's about trust, happiness and compassion. It's about sticking up for your friends and replacing inner hate with love. Life is about avoiding jealousy, overcoming ignorance and building confidence. It's about what you say and what you mean. It's about seeing people for who they are and not what they have. Most of all, It's about choosing to use life to touch someone else's in a way that could never have been acheived otherwise. These choices are what life's all about" - I want to thank all the people who have taught me this in life.
Thank you to my whole family, Gene and all of my girls!

Students Honor Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

By Jonas Budris

Musicians, poets, guest speakers, and dancers all mounted the stage last Wednesday to celebrate the human connections which tie cultures, countries, and peoples together.

During the assembly, regional high school students, faculty, and staff gathered in the Performing Arts Center to watch a series of acts centered around the life and ideas of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Guest speaker and Island attorney Theo Nix spoke about the influence of Dr. King, relating his message to the troubles of today.

"Step out of your comfort zone," he said. Mr. Nix said that Americans are too isolated with respect to the rest of the world, and one solution is for more of us to become involved with people from other cultures. "We must learn to live together as brothers, or we will die together as fools," he said, quoting a speech by Dr. King.

(Clockwise from bottom left) Willy Mason, a junior, performs "The Silence Shall Be Broken," a piece of his own creation, which is reminiscent of political songs of the 1960s yet bears Willy's own style. Singers from the regional high school mixed chorus perform "Anthem of Peace," the fusion of an Estonian folk song and a traditional American spiritual. Members of the chorus performed this and several other songs, including an Irish folk song entitled "Hard Times Come Again No More," with soloist Cassidy Look, and a James Taylor song, "Shed a Little Light O Lord," while a video montage of Dr. King's life played in the background. Janis Vogel performs with the Kelly Peters hip-hop dance crew. Kelly Peters demonstrates his breaking skills. Theo Nix offers a message encouraging students and faculty to go out into the world and seek diversity in their lives.

The Sound of Power

By Jonas Budris

If Vytautas Landsbergis appears at all in my history books, he is but a footnote. Perhaps the former president of Lithuania just wasn't charming enough for the keepers of history to fully notice.

Commentary

He does not have a suave or sonorous voice, nor does he present himself as very revolutionary. His soft, wandering sentences delivered in nasal undertones don't inspire fists raised in defiance. To boot, he has dreadful hair, wrinkled pants, and spindly glasses, much like mine.

But if his mug were on a poster, I would gladly hang it on my wall. He is the unsung champion of awkward music nerds everywhere. Give others credit for beating down the Berlin Wall in a quick night, but acknowledge Mr. Landsbergis as a man who slowly rusted a hole in the Iron Curtain. He did it like no one else, not with guns, not with terrorism, but with music. He called on his countrymen to sing, not shoot, at the Soviet tanks which threatened to crush them.

I was lucky enough to meet him, though where my exact memory begins and family lore ends is a gray noman's land. I spent most summers of my early childhood in what was then Soviet Lithuania. Although my father (a freelance writer of Lithuanian ancestry), and my mother (born and raised 100 miles from Vilnius), were swept up in the burgeoning independence movement in the Baltics, I was six. I instead pondered the tawny berries my grandmother would pick in the forest, snails on the pine trees, playing on rides in the park.

So on the day I first met Mr. Landsbergis I was not thinking about politics. I was in tow with my father who was scheduled to interview him in the barricaded Parliament building in Vilnius.

He sat by a desk, flanked by two objects which reveal the leader he is — a chessboard and a piano. These were his weapons of choice. He did not brandish a kalashnikoff, as does Osama bin Laden. He instead chose intellect and music.

When Lithuania declared her independence from the Soviet Union in the spring of 1990 (after 50 years of occupation), Moscow responded with a reign of blockades and murder. Mr. Landsbergis did not call on Lithuanians to return the terror. He called for Beethoven's Ninth, and the music played in Vilnius' Cathedral Square to tens of thousands. The summer before, he and half a million Estonians, Latvians, and Lithuanians held hands and sang in a 500-mile-long human chain from the Baltic Sea to the Belarus border — in reserved defiance, in brotherhood.

Mr. Landsbergis was always less the politician and more the musician. A music professor, he knew that song held a powerful force to heal, motivate, and give strength. He knew he could free his people through no better means than song.

His idealism was contagious, even to the seemingly immune. Soviet soldiers, once ordered to fire upon singing civilians, began to question Moscow's orders, and many deserted, seeking refuge in Lithuania. Ultimately, the rest of the world opened its eyes. Support came first from Iceland, then from a cascade of other nations, all of which recognized Lithuania as a sovereign state (along with a host of other Soviet republics).

The occupation dissolved, Moscow released its chokehold, and Lithuanians began to rebuild their own nation, using their own laws, language, and values. A besieged culture triumphed, without firing back a single shot.

I pray that the people I cherish never face so much danger that I must take up arms to defend them. I am clumsy, I rarely win at predatory video games, and I doubt I could do much good with an assault rifle or airplane throttle, should one be thrust into my hands.

But hand me the score to a Requiem Mass, ask me to learn contrabass clarinet, read me a poem you want set to a hymn — and I am in my warrior's element. Until recently, I thought the talents I did have would be of little use in war. Now I've come to see music as a universal form of prayer. And like prayer, music can even unite those for whom union appears impossible. What a wondrous weapon.

I have yet to learn what exact part I might play in that monumental effort to repair the aftermath of September's terror. All I can do right now is keep practicing, performing, studying, and most of all, keep showing up.

Here is the lesson I learned from Mr. Landsbergis: Heroism is not only defined by singular events of righteous violence, but measured in a lifetime of showing up for the little things, the greater truths, the singular beauties.

Last spring, my high school choral group toured Lithuania. On Easter Sunday in light snow, we sang at St. John's Cathedral at Vilnius University. I am not sure when I noticed, but there in the back of that ancient church Vytautas Landsbergis sat and listened.

He showed up for music, like he always does.

The High School View

The High School View is staffed and prepared entirely by students from the Martha's Vineyard Regional High School, and published on their behalf by The Martha's Vineyard Times, with the generous assistance of the sponsors whose names appear below.

Traffic Crisis Jams Campus

By Anna Gordon

Overflow from the Martha's Vineyard Regional High School parking lot has congested public side roads and fire lanes and created a controversy with state forest officials.

John Varkonda, superintendent of the Manuel F. Correllus State Forest, discussed this issue with Michael Halt, regional high school dean of students, last week.

Mr. Varkonda had considered towing all of the student cars parked on Sanderson Avenue, also known as the fire lane, because they block fire gates that lead to the fire lanes that run throughout the forest.

Along with blocking the fire lanes, another problem arose during the last couple of years involving jurisdiction. Sanderson Avenue was built by the Navy in World War II and no town officially claims ownership over it. Therefore, the conditions are beginning to become poor because no one is repairing it.

"There are so many potholes down there, so when cars use the road, they tend to swerve around the potholes, but it is not easy to do this when the road is narrowed by 30 cars parked on the side," said Mr. Halt.

The students that use this parking area are the drivers who do not receive parking permits after they have all been given out. Upperclassmen have always been given first priority for parking permits for the student parking lot. However, this year, there is a bulging senior and junior class, equaling almost 400 students.

This has created a problem because there are only 125 parking spaces in the student parking lot, thus resulting in more demand than supply. The ensuing overflow now can add up to 30 or more on some days.

Students without parking permits are prohibited from parking on campus because if something happens to their car or if an accident takes place, the school can be sued for damages.

"We can't have someone assume that we have liability for the cars that we don't know are parked on campus," said Mr. Halt. "So then this leaves the question of where the school campus ends. Well, it ends down by the fire hydrant, so I've always told students that they can park past it on the road."

Prior to this year, students have always parked on the fire lane, legally called Sanderson Avenue, without a problem, but according to Mr. Halt, there have never been more than six cars at the most along the side of the road. Now there are 30.

Mr. Varkonda said, "The big problem I had, the reason why I sort of got into this was that they were blocking the fire gates, which lead into the state forest, and I can't have that. If they block fire gates and I need to get in in case of an emergency, that's going to be a problem."

For now, dozens of student cars crowd Sanderson Avenue each day.

The school is looking into ways of dealing with the situation and has come up with a possible solution that will come into effect by Nov. 19. Kevin Carr, the vocational director, is working on a new parking area for the buses. When it is complete, the buses will park there, and teachers will be told to park in the former bus lot by the gym, freeing up about 25 spaces beside the school from the teachers' parking lot.

Mr. Halt will give out more parking stickers for these spaces, and he hopes to absorb another five students into the main student parking lot by putting them in spaces that work-study students use because these students are only present at school every other day.

Rumors are bouncing around among the students about the whole issue, but they do not know the details of the situation. For the most part, what they have heard is that they will no longer be allowed to park on the fire lane because of a problem with the fire engines' inability to pass by.

Caitlin Perry, a junior who will receive her license during the second half of the year, said, "I think that all of this is ridiculous. It would be understandable if the fire trucks couldn't get through at all, but there is plenty of room for them to pass by. There's a place where they could allow students to park down by the football fields that is usually used during games, but we can't park there because the teachers can't see it from the windows so they can't tell if kids are skipping or not. I just think that they should have parking places for all juniors and seniors."

The extra lot that Caitlin referred to is a parking area by the sports fields, which accommodates about 40 vehicles and is used by parents who want to watch their children's sports games.

Mr. Halt said that the administration had considered allowing student athletes to park there, but as Caitlin said, any student parking on the campus has to do so in the line of vision of the school windows so the teachers can watch for students skipping out or for any accident that may occur.

Mr. Halt said that the idea of installing cameras at this lot to open it up was discussed, but it has become a cost issue. "Money has become one of our limiting factors. I guess I'm saying that it's getting kind of tight," he said.

Mr. Halt does not want anyone to worry, because nothing is going to happen to the cars parked in the fire lane until Nov. 19, and by then he will have come up with a solution to the problem.

The state forest superintendent will not tow any cars until after that day, but students should be aware that parking directly in front of the fire gates that open up into the forest is still off-limits.

Halogen Paradise

From time to time "The High School View" will publish student college essays. This essay is based on the following prompt: Describe the future.

Essay

When I'm 105 I will spend half my time cultivating kidneys with my At Home Grow Your Own Organ Kit, made by Philip Morris. I won't be blind, because I just whipped up another batch of eyeballs, but it'll be hard for me to see much that isn't an advertisement. I won't even be able to urinate without my toilet telling me the price of new triple-ply scented toilet paper. My bionic wife will tuck me into bed and set up my Viagra drip, and I'll be perfectly content with the corporate logo branded on her stomach.

Between praying to Bill Gates and Philip Morris CEO Geoffrey Bible, I'll thank Nabisco for making vitamin-enhanced Oreos that help prevent heart attacks. I'll never think for a moment that I'm happy only because I have a sub-dermal Valium patch under my armpit. I'll still believe, as I do now, that the human mind can block out consumer impulse, that I have the mental stamina to glaze over advertisements on billboards. I'll remember that when I was 18, I would get half my clothes from secondhand stores, because I didn't want to feed the child labor furnace. I'll remember reading Bukowski on the toilet, knowing that he had the answers, and that they had something to do with cockroaches and urination.

BRONWYN BURNS ILLUSTRATION

I won't even notice that my values have changed. I won't question for a second the morality of the way I live my life, because even the homeless will have financial backing.

I'll live content for another 100 years, under the Nike symbol clouds, harvesting organs like I harvest vegetables now. I won't be ahle to ignore the changes that begin to occur on my 215th birthday, when I notice a cockroach crawling on my Gucci birthday cake. I'll remember how I haven't seen a bug in hundreds of years and wonder where they have been hiding for so long.

I'll wonder where I have been hiding for so long as I strip off my self-cleaning J. Crew three-piece suit. Cradling the roach in my fist, I will run under the halogen city lights, naked, head up, waiting for a single star to push through the city glow.

This project is designed for students to work together in different academic areas to solve real life problem: designing and building the strongest bridge. All of the specific rules that you are to follow while making your bridge are listed below. To judge the bridges, free weights will be placed on the roadbed of the bridge until the bridge fails. Each person or group may enter one bridge. Failure to adhere to the rules below will result in a disqualification of your bridge.

Rules for the competition:

1) Students may work individually or in groups of no more than 3.

2) All participants must be registered with Mr. DeBettencourt in Room B208 by 2/22/02 All bridges are due no later than 3/12/02 at 2:05 p.m. for inspection. Bridges that do not meet all of the requirements will be disqualified.

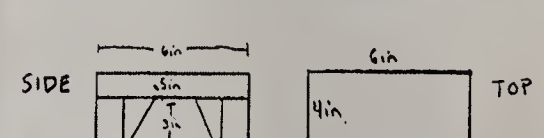
3) The competition will take place on 3/14/02 at 7:45 a.m. in the MVRHS Performing Arts Center. All participants must be present at the competition.

4) Bridges must be constructed from less than one pound of linguini (Prince's #11 Linguini) and regular Elmer's glue. That's it!

5) The bridge must be built with the following dimensions:

a) The bridge will span an opening of at least 5 inches. (This distance is to be between the center most pillars).
b) The width of the road must be at least 4 inches.
c) There must be open space above the bridge to place the weights on.
d) The base of the roadbed must be at least 3 inches above the ground level.
e) The length can range from 6" to 18".
f) The width can range from 4" to 8".
g) The height of the roadbed must be at least 3.5 inches.

These dimensions are only minimum values!



6) No alterations of the linguini in any way (cooking, painting, etc.).

7) You may cut, bend, or break the linguini.

8) The top of the bridge (roadbed) must be flat to balance the piece of wood on which the weights will be placed (as mentioned above).

9) You may glue two strands of linguini together but no more than 2 strands. Double Bonding Only!!!

10) Do not glue the bridge to any form of base.

11) All bridges must hold a minimum 20 lbs

12) Glue should only be used to attach joints and for double bonding. Do not dip any part of the bridge in the glue!

13) Each team may get help from teachers, parents, carpenters, architects, engineers, Italian chefs, priests, rabbis, etc.

14) Only registered participants will be allowed to attend the competition.

15) The competition will consist of a series of elimination rounds with various weights placed on a wooden support on the top of the bridge.

16) Bridges that meet all of the requirements and are turned in on or before 3/12/02 at 2:00 p.m. will receive a test grade of 85%. Grades will be scaled higher according to their beauty and the weight that they can hold.

17) Participants that have any questions should see Mr. DeBettencourt in Room 208 as soon as possible.

We would like to thank all the members of the Vineyarder staff for helping us put the book together. This is our last year in high school and most of us will leave next year for colleges, careers and our futures. We hope that this yearbook will remind us of our glory days growing up in this unique community.

Thank you to our advisors Mr. Baer and Mr. McCarthy as well as those who have helped us along the way.

Libby Johnson
